CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 40 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.1in. Chapped Lap is Frank Moore's first slim book of poetry, featuring poetry from the 1990s and 2000 (published in 2000). Originally a xeroxed and stapled chapbook, as the title suggests, this small collection is dense with pieces that have become classics. Not only did Frank perform these poems for years, but they were also often used in his interactive performances, read by audience members, and read by fellow poets, always adding new levels to the frame in which they were performed. Two of the pieces, out of isolation and wrapping and rocking, were both written earlier 1986. These deep evocative pieces are the roots of what would become decades of Frank's evolving performances. out of isolation pulled the audience into the universe of a character named Jim, institutionalized and severely disabled, exploring what happens when a nurse, Jane, is assigned to treat him. Frank described it as a surreal erotic examination of an intimate relationship of need. I only wish I was not the only soft fingers. . . I wish there was another soft fingers in my universe of...
