Excerpt from An Address Delivered at the Formation of the Blackstone Monument Association: Together With the Preliminaries, and Proceedings at Study Hill, July 4, 1855 On the 26th day of May, 1855, being the anniversary of Blackstone s death, the following communication appeared in the Business Directory, a newspaper published at Pawtucket, R. I. William Blackstone. Who was this almost mythical personage, whose name has been perpetuated in the waters that flow through our village, and what was his history? A brief reply may be interesting just at the present time. William Blackstone was an Episcopal clergyman of England, early in the 17th century. He was a bold, independent and intelligent man - far in advance of the age in which he lived. He was one of those self-poised spirits who would not submit to the theological dictation and civil usurpation of that weak-minded, fiery-headed, yet eminent scholar, Archbishop Laud. He left England and landed on this coast soon after the first band of pilgrims, and chose to stray away alone. He settled at Shawmut, the Indian name of the spot where the...
