Excerpt: . . . of it, so long as it continues to improve in efficiency and public benefit, and holds, as it does now, the position of our brightest ornament, with the prospect of being the fruitful source from whence we are to derive yet higher honor and more brilliant results. REVISION OF THE ORDINANCES. I can not too earnestly impress upon you the necessity of a revision and a collecting of the ordinances into one or more volumes, and a codification of the laws applicable to this city. It would be almost incredible to a stranger to be told that there is no collection of the laws by which this city is governed. A collection of ordinances has not been published since 1845, and of that but few copies remain; since 1845 material amendments have been made to the charter, and numerous resolutions and ordinances have been adopted, which are now to be found only by a voyage of discovery in the office of the Clerk of the Board of Aldermen, with the chance being very much against success, even with the guide of the accommodating officers who have charge of that office. The memory of persons who have for many years been connected with the Common Council is the only index in existence. The mere statement of the fact will, I am confident, procure action. THE DOCKS. The dock accommodations for the shipping of the city, is another subject which should. receive notice. You need not be...
