Forgotten Books. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 156 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.3in. Excerpt from The Autumn Maneuvers of 1898, Vol. 26: Austria-Hungary, France, Germany, Great Britain, Russia, and Switzerland; August, 1899. In compiling the reports on the autumn maneuvers of 1898 in Europe, data from both official and unofficial sources have been used. There has been taken from official reports and military periodicals such matter as would seem to furnish, in narrative form, to American officers the most interesting and instructive account obtainable. The description of the English maneuvers is taken from the official report, Army and Navy Gazette, and Broad Arrow. The official report is replete with details, and contains much valuable information, which it is not practicable to print in this document. The description of the French maneuvers is taken from official reports, omitting such portions as do not bear directly upon the solution of the problems involved. The description of the Austrian, German, and Russian operations is taken from the Revue Militaire de l'Etranger, with an extract from Beiheft zum Militar Wochenblatt. The description of the Swiss maneuvers is taken from the Allgemeine Schweizerische Militar Zeitung and from the Revue Militaire Suisse....
