Excerpt: . . . of certain divisions of the service and the introduction of typewriters therein, would permit of a still further reduction in the number of clerks and at the same time insure more efficient service. IV. METHODS AND PROCEDURE. COMMON TO BOTH OFFICES. Trust Funds. The policy of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of permitting a proper inspection of the accounts of the funds held by him in escrow and his practice of paying into the county treasury interest on such funds, and on his daily fee deposits as well, are to be highly commended. In contrast, it is pointed out that the Clerk of the Superior Court does not pay into the county treasury any interest which may accrue on funds while in his possession, and that his record of escrow deposits is not open to public, or proper official inspection. Permission was denied...
